a glimpse of the propeller and found that the boat was touching the rudder. It appeared to him that the propeller and two blades left, the other two being intact. He had to go no more as he was compelled by the heat seen to get back.

Owing to the sky being overcast can't exactly make out our position. We make it at 35° N. long. 110° E. at noon.

26-27 Dec.—About 1.10 p.m. we sighted a steamer, we hoisted signals of distress and she answered. It was the British steamer Waspang, of London. When she had approached close to us we exchanged signals thus:—“Engines disabled, can you tow me into Singapore?” (Is the captain’s answer?) “Can tow you to Cape St. James.” I then asked him how much he would require, and as he had approached very close to our ship, he answered, “I will charge you £100 per day for my services.” I offered £200. He refused. In the meantime the Waspang had lowered a gig which came alongside to confer with us. He said our steamer belongs to a large Company. I proposed to leave the mutinees to be settled between the owners. The reply was negative. I then offered £100 per day for my services. He agreed.

Considering the position of the steamer and her state, the number of passengers on board, a full cargo of merchandise, the state of the weather, and having consulted my staff, for the good and safety of all concerned I take the decision to offer the sum of £4,500, which is accepted. By means of the Waspang’s tug-boats we are now able to move about in the harbor, though single places of shelter at a time.

THE GREAT SUM SICK.

PARK, 14th February.

At to-day’s sitting of the Academy of Sciences Count Fidicino de Losos, the world-famed diplomat and promoter of naval “feasts” of engineering, a lively discussion took place.

The Paris Journal will this evening publish a statement made to M. Lalot, an ex-Dputy.

He says:

“My desire and the wish of the church is that France should be happy. She is a nation whose plumed and generous character, though not always in accordance with the principles of justice, will always be held in high esteem.

During the night she stood by, and about 10 a.m. she approached and took up the harbor again. We were received by five tugs, and a small boat under command of one of his officers, who was sent to take the Waspang.

The Waspang then hoisted more signals—“Desired to abandon you.” I answered at once—“Do not abandon me.” He then asked me whether I was willing to tranship the passengers. I was not, but being a very dangerous situation, I said, “I will do what I can for the men.” The third officer and the other however, which was me, the Waspang now exchanged some manœuvres and came alongside (out of the port-side) to 10 fms. to keep ready for tomorrow morning. During the night she stood by, and about 10 a.m. she approached and took up the harbor again. We were received by five tugs, and a small boat under command of one of his officers, who was sent to take the Waspang.

The Waspang then hoisted more signals—“Desired to abandon you.” I answered at once—“Do not abandon me.” He then asked me whether I was willing to tranship the passengers.

THE POPE AND FRANCE.

PARK, 17th February.

The Paris Journal will this evening publish a statement from the Pope. It is, in substance, as follows:

“My desire and the wish of the church is that France should be happy. She is a nation whose plumed and generous character, though not always in accordance with the principles of justice, will always be held in high esteem.
